This technical drawing illustrates a rectangular frame assembly. At the top, a horizontal rail is shown with a central label 'II'. Four corner brackets are attached to the ends of this rail. Arrows point downwards from each bracket, indicating a downward force or movement. The main body of the frame is a large rectangle with dashed horizontal lines inside. At the bottom, a horizontal rail is shown with two 'M' labels. A central vertical component is attached to this bottom rail, and arrows point upwards from its base, indicating an upward force or movement.
